Get ready for Genesee County crime to get back into the national spotlight this fall.

Prosecutor David Leyton was interviewed Thursday by not one but two film crews from the Discovery Channel.

One crew is working on a piece about the notorious 2006 murder spree by Patrick A. Selepak and his fiancée, Samantha J. Bachynski, who killed a New Baltimore couple before taking the life of a Vienna Township man they befriended.

The second piece is yet another feature on Sharee Miller, a former Mt. Morris woman who police said talked her Internet lover into killing her husband in 1999.

The bizarre case of sex and suicide has already sparked a rash of television pieces, a Lifetime movie and the book "Fatal Error" by former Journal reporter Paul Janczewski and Kansas City Star reporter Mark Morris.

Stay tuned for air dates on these pieces which are expected in the Fall.
